ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

Unconventional teaching practices goes beyond textbooks and four walls to make learning more than a rote sport having limitless possibilities to improve the educational process. It aims to give the students an in-depth exposure of the subjects and fill the educational experience with enlightening values. It brings lessons to life replacing stale traditional methods of conveying information with innovative technologies such as tablets, interactive whiteboards, Panel Discussions, Debates, Role Playing, Film Viewing etc. It helps prepare students become culturally competent, caring and contributive local and global citizens. Unconventional practices are not just about technology driven classrooms but about continuous and comprehensive evaluation, cross-curricular connections, linking curriculum to life, development of skills and values, civic engagement, integrative and social responsibility.

Education is being revolutionised everyday by technology and being made accessible to the untapped masses. It has allowed education to be brought outside the Individual learning is acknowledged. It is constantly opening up the new frontiers in education.

The only question that remains for forward-thinking teachers is what new technologies will emerge and how will they be utilized. The teachers who adopt these unconventional practices are the conceptual innovators laying the groundwork for future generations of teachers. They work on modification of classroom practices to help the learners understand and take charge of improving their own learning processes.
